

RODERICK EDWARDS

Program Manager and Technical Lead
National Security and Space Sector

As a program manager and technical lead within SAIC's National Security and Space Sector, Roderick Edwards is responsible for leading a program that provides pre-award and post-award acquisition and contracting support to an intelligence community customer.

Roderick joined SAIC in May 2021 after a successful 31-year career in the U.S. Air Force. As an officer within the contracting career field, he held a variety of leadership positions at the tactical, operational and strategic levels.

He was deployed overseas several times and spent the majority of his military service on tours for the joint and intelligence communities. His long and distinguished military career culminated with him serving as the chief of the Acquisition Management Branch of the Joint Staff in Washington, D.C.

Roderick earned his MBA from Touro University. He holds master's certificates in commercial and government contracting from Villanova University and a bachelor's degree in organizational management from Warner University.

During his service, Roderick completed several military professional education courses, and he maintains a Department of Defense (DOD) Acquisition Professional Development Program Level III in contracting and DOD Acquisition Professional Development Program Level I in program management. He is also a member of the National Contract Management Association.

Roderick is a native of Lake City, Fla., and currently resides in northern Virginia. In his spare time, he enjoys working on cars and motorcycles, traveling and serving the less fortunate.
