

BEN WANJARA

Senior Vice President and Controller

Ben Wanjara is a senior vice president and SAIC's controller, responsible for all aspects of the company's accounting functions, including compliance with regulatory accounting standards and practices, SEC reporting, technical accounting policy, accounting systems and operations and shared services. Ben also supports SAIC's business sectors and functional teams, in providing accounting guidance on contemplated transactions.

Ben has extensive accounting and finance experience gained from working for the Big Four accounting firms and companies across multiple industries. Prior to joining SAIC in March 2021, Ben served as a vice president and assistant corporate controller at Leidos, leading the technical accounting policy group, SEC reporting and revenue accounting and consolidation teams. He also provided support and guidance to the shared services, domestic and international operations accounting teams and business groups.

Prior to Leidos, Ben held accounting leadership roles at Capital One, AOL and KPMG, leading technical accounting policy, financial reporting and providing accounting advisory services.

Ben earned his bachelor's degree in accounting from George Mason University and a master's in business administration from George Washington University. Ben is also a certified public accountant, licensed in Virginia.

Ben is a board member of JONDA, a nonprofit organization that helps pay school fees and provides support for needy children in Kenya, where he grew up before moving to the United States in early 1990s.
